The Autumn Business and Prospects of Dull Times-Unemployed Capital-Foreign Com-position and Decline in the Productive Ca-pacity of Britain-Want of Industrial Opera-tive Education and Its Consequences. Loxon, Sept. 12, 1867.

Lordow, Sept. 12, 1867.

Trade is opening quietly this autumn in London, and comparatively little business is being done by the wholesale houses engaged in the Manchester and general trades, including goods of all descriptions that come under the head of textile fabrics. It used to be the practice a few years back to make large anticipatory parcels for a coming season, but this custom is getting very much out of fashion, and people buy more from hand to mouth than formerly. The prices of goods here are tolerably firm and stationary in textures composed of wool and silk; but we have a falling market to deal with in cotton goods, which always affects a trade adversely for the time being. There is a great deal of surplus money in the country lying idle and unemployed, but not the slightest business speculation, and this state of things we consider will continue until the beginning of 1868, when, if there are no political complications or of 1868, when, if there are no political complications of European war, a good business year is expected.

The question of foreign competition is now engaging a reat deal of attention, both in London and the manuacturing centres. It is proved beyond doubt that many mportant branches of English commerce are being displaced by foreign importations, slowly but surely, which is very generally attributed to the great want of techni-cal and primary education among our workmen and

[From the London Star, August 24.]

Last night a number of gentieme interested in Central America assembled at the Trafagar Hote, at Greenwich, to do honor to General Martines, who, during a period of ten years, has been President of Nicaragua. Captain Bedford Pim, R. N., chairman of the Central American Association, occupied the chair. The company included Senor Marcoleta, Don Emile Bernard, Meura. Gassiott, Bowen, Hickman, Heurity, Senor Castro, Mellor, Jacoba, Manning, Steele, Tata, Collisson, Dr. Sutro, Senor Curasur, Mr. Sayers, and many other gentlemen. The Chairman proceeded to give the toast of the evening, which was the health of General Martinez. In the course of his remarks Captain Pim said—General Martinez was born on Christman Day, 1820. In early life he travelled over every part of his nauve country, and thereby obtained the practical knowledge which was destined in after life to be of incalculable value. In 1854 General Martinez, actuated by that patriotism which every true lover of his country must feel in her hour of need, joined the army which had been formed to repei the lavators under the fillbuster Walker. That he was eminently successful, both on the field of battle and in the Cabinet, was proved by the fact that in 1856 he was made Provisional President, while is the following year, peace having been restored mainly through his instrumentality, he was unanimously elected President. During the years 1857 to 1862 he filled the chair as Chief Magistrate of Nicaragua with distinguished ability and entire satisfaction, not only to his own countrymen, but to those foreigness who were brough to Nicaragua either by business or pleasure. At the expiration of his term of office he was see elected President and eccupied this high position until Pebruary of this year, when Don Fersandez Gurman assumed office. In 1863 San Salvador, in alliance with Hunduras, declared war against Nicaragua. The allies invaded the republic in April of that year and marched straight on Leon. In the meantime the standard of revolt had been raised in the southern part of Nicaragua, and thus he Excellency the President found hinnelf surrounded with foss on all sides. But the man who mainly contributed to the downfall of the fillbuster Walker was equal to the occasion. It was his (the chairman's) fortune to be under the necessity of pushing his way lute the interior of Nicaragua at this critical time. Fi to be the precursors of such an advent of progress as would sherily raise the native country of General Mertines to that proud position anymy nations which her wonderful natural resources, the fertility of her soil, the salubrity of her olimate and her unrivalled facility of transit between the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards, unquestionably entitled her to aspire to, and which justified the congretantors to applying to Nicaragus the name of 'El Parsizo de Mahomet.' I will conclude by asking you to driak to the toan, "Prosperity to tentral America."

Senor Marcoleta was born in 1802, and entered the diplomatic service of Spani in 1826. In 1834 he left his native country, and soon after turned his attention toward Central America. It was Senor Marcoleta who entered into the seguitations with the pearnt Emperor of the Prench, then a pri over at Ham, to place himself at the head of a grant scheme of colonization and analization of Nicaragus, and to this day his Majesy retains a very favorable feeling invariat that country, and a great re-pect for the distinguished ippimatis who us our guart this essentiary of General Marcinets served as Charge d'Affaires, but since then be has been advanced to the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary. HOW DLD POLITICAL RATS LOVE EACH OTHER.

form the Commercial Advertiser—Weed—Sept. 27.]

[From the Commercial Advertiser—Weed—Sept. 27.]

It "Old Blast" had lived in the days of our firstparents, the presence of the serpent would have been superfluous. If, at a later period, he had been "one of the tweive," there would have been no question into whose pecket the "thirty pieces" dropped.

His "cab," Montgomery, is a missance. As a politician he is "in everybody's mess and in nobody's watch." He is a common scold, but so impotent that nobody cares for his slanders. He exhausted the patience even of Mr. Lincols, who was finally compelled to ass for his resignation.
